

Manuscript Preparation Guidelines for Authors

Authors submitting manuscripts to the Journal of Premier Research are encouraged to adhere to the following detailed instructions to ensure compliance with the journal's formatting and submission standards, facilitating the peer review process and enhancing the likelihood of successful publication.

1. Manuscript Formatting:

- Prepare manuscripts using Microsoft Word or a compatible word processing software.
- Utilize a legible font such as Times New Roman or Arial, with a font size of 12 points.
- Maintain double-spacing throughout the manuscript, including the title page, abstract, text, references, and tables.
- Number all pages consecutively, commencing with the title page.
- Include line numbers on each page to expedite the review process.

2. Title Page:

- Furnish a succinct and descriptive title that accurately reflects the manuscript's content.
- List all authors' full names, affiliations, and institutional affiliations.
- Clearly designate the corresponding author and provide their contact details, including email address and institutional affiliation.

3. Abstract:

- Provide a concise abstract of 250-300 words summarizing the study's key findings, objectives, methods, results, and conclusions.
- Use clear and succinct language to elucidate the research's significance and implications.

4. Keywords:

- Offer a list of 3-5 keywords or phrases that aptly represent the manuscript's content and scope.
- Select keywords that are specific, pertinent, and commonly used in the realm of clinical performance evaluation and malpractice prevention.

5. Main Text:

- Structure the main text into sections encompassing Introduction, Methods, Results, Discussion, and Conclusion.
- Clearly delineate the research objectives, hypotheses, or research questions in the Introduction.
- Detail the study design, methodology, data collection procedures, and statistical analyses in the Methods section.
- Present primary findings, data analyses, and results in the Results section, accompanied by tables, figures, and graphs as necessary.
- Interpret findings, discuss their implications, and compare them with previous research in the Discussion section.
- Conclude with a summary of key findings, limitations, and recommendations for future research in the Conclusion section.

6. References:

- Format references in accordance with the American Psychological Association (APA) style guidelines.
- Include only pertinent and current references cited in the manuscript.
- Provide complete bibliographic details for each reference, including authors' names, title, journal name, volume, issue, page numbers, and publication year.

7. Tables and Figures:

- Present tables and figures clearly and succinctly, accompanied by descriptive titles and captions.
- Ensure tables and figures are referenced in the text and placed appropriately within the manuscript.
- Provide clear and accurate legends or footnotes to elucidate table and figure content.

8. Supplementary Materials:

- If applicable, incorporate supplementary materials such as additional data, appendices, or multimedia files to support the main text.
- Clearly delineate the relevance and purpose of supplementary materials and include appropriate citations in the main text.

9. Ethical Considerations:

- Ensure that the research described in the manuscript adheres to ethical guidelines and regulations, including informed consent, human subject's protection, and animal welfare.
- Provide details regarding ethical approval or exemption from an institutional review board (IRB) or ethics committee, if applicable.

10. Submission Process:

- Submit manuscripts electronically via the journal's online submission system, adhering to instructions provided on the journal's website.
- Include a cover letter summarizing the manuscript's significance, originality, and contribution to the field, along with any additional pertinent information or disclosures.

By adhering to these detailed instructions for manuscript preparation, authors can ensure compliance with JPR formatting and submission criteria, expediting the peer review and publication process. Authors are encouraged to consult the journal's author guidelines for further information and updates on submission policies and procedures.
