

The Journal of Premier Research is committed to open access publishing, ensuring that research findings are freely accessible to the global community without barriers to access. Here's an overview of the Journal of Premier Research's open access policy, including any associated article processing charges (APCs) or publication fees:

Open Access Policy:

The Journal of Premier Research follows a gold open access model, meaning that all articles published in the journal are freely available to readers immediately upon publication, without the need for a subscription or access fee. This open access policy enables researchers, practitioners, policymakers, and the general public to access and benefit from the latest advancements and insights in premier research.

Authors retain copyright ownership of their published work, and articles are typically published under a Creative Commons license, which allows for the broad dissemination and reuse of content while ensuring proper attribution to the original authors.

Article Processing Charges (APCs) or Publication Fees:

As part of its commitment to open access publishing, the Journal of Premier Research does not charge authors any article processing charges (APCs) or publication fees for the submission, peer review, and publication of their manuscripts. Authors can submit their work to the Journal of Premier Research free of charge, and accepted articles are published online and made freely available to readers without any costs or fees.

The Journal of Premier Research covers the costs associated with the editorial process, peer review, copyediting, typesetting, and online hosting of published articles through institutional support, sponsorships, and other funding sources. This approach ensures that authors from diverse backgrounds and institutions can contribute to the journal without financial barriers and promotes equitable access to scholarly research.

By adopting an open access policy without APCs or publication fees, the Journal of Premier Research fosters transparency, inclusivity, and accessibility in scholarly communication, advancing the dissemination of knowledge and facilitating collaboration and innovation in premier research.

Authors are encouraged to consult the journal's website or contact the editorial office for the most up-to-date information on the Journal of Premier Research's open access policy and any associated fees or charges.